

This woodblock print illustration shows a dramatic moment. A central figure, a man with a shaved head and a traditional headband, is being held back by two others. He wears a kimono with a bold geometric pattern. To his right, another man in similar attire gestures emphatically towards a rectangular sign posted on a wooden wall. The sign features vertical columns of Japanese text, starting with '月日' (month/day) and ending with '定' (fixed/determined). In the upper left corner, there are several small, handwritten-style annotations. At the bottom left, more text is visible, possibly indicating a chapter or page reference.
